

SubscriberWise Alerts Ohio Senator Oelslager and Common Pleas Judge Elinore Marsh Stormer to Sophisticated Credit Scam

Probate approved name changes undermine nation's credit and banking system through elaborate scam, SubscriberWise CEO David Howe demonstrates MASSILLON, OH, U.S.A., June 3, 2015 /EINPresswire.com/ -- SubscriberWise®, a leading provider of analytics driven subscriber decision management technology and the nation's largest issuing consumer reporting agency for the communications industry, announced today that the company president has alerted an Ohio lawmaker and a Common Pleas Judge of serious frauds involving probate name changes, credit identities, and the national credit reporting agencies: Equifax, Experian, and TransUnion.

Howe shares the stage with cable professionals and addresses audience in New York City

According to SubscriberWise, the scheme dupes consumers, creditors, banks, and institutions everywhere. Because of an absence of legal duties for individuals in virtually every state and because of technology weaknesses in the credit system, the fraud is almost never caught or exposed.

The fraud is instigated following a legal change of name and subsequent applications for credit - almost immediately after the court grants the petitioner's request.

In the U.S.A., it's a federal crime to:

lie on a credit or loan application misrepresent one's Social Security number obtain an EIN from the IRS under false pretenses.

“On behalf of the adult credit consuming population and, in particular, honest consumers struggling with difficult credit circumstances everywhere, I'm outraged by the brazen and deliberate credit scams perpetuated by manipulative individuals who have successfully petitioned Ohio courts to change their name and then – almost instantaneously – walk away from extremely adverse credit files,” stated David Howe, president of SubscriberWise. “I’ve contacted Senator Oelslager’s office to inform and educate him about this insidious scheme. I have high expectations for the Senator to update Ohio laws and stop this scam in its tracks. I hope other states follow our lead and pass laws to close this loophole. Perhaps SubscriberWise will petition Congress for federal action if successful in Ohio.

"Last year I met with The Honorable Elinore Marsh Stormer and her court administration in Akron, Ohio," continued Howe. "I exposed every detail of the scam, including a review of audio files involving the fraudulent application for credit. I demonstrated to the court administrators how extremely adverse credit files are circumvented with 'fresh' credit reports and favorable FICO scores in a matter of days or weeks. Judge Stormer and the others had no idea the scheme existed," recalled Howe. "However, each recognized the serious threat and agreed there should be changes.

"The fraud is instigated following a legal change of name and subsequent applications for credit - almost immediately after the court grants the petitioner's request," concluded Howe. "Although it would be imprudent and unethical for me to explain the processes of this fraud in detail, I certainly can provide several solutions that I know will have a positive and immediate impact to this problem. I'm prepared and looking forward to working with Senator Oelslager."
